

DEATH OF BISHOP JONES.

He Passed Away at Abergwili Palace in Wales, Yesterday.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The Right Rev. William Basil Jones, Bishop of the Diocese of St. David's, in the Church of England, died at Abergwili Palace, Carmarthen, Wales, to-day. He was consecrated Bishop in 1874.

The Right Rev. William Basil Jones was the eldest son of the late William Tilsey Jones, Esq., of Gwynfryn, Cardiganshire. The son was born in 1822, and was educated at Shrewsbury School under Dr. Butler and Dr. Kennedy. He was elected in 1840 to a Scholarship at Trinity College, Oxford, where he obtained the Ireland University Scholarship in 1842, and took his B. A. degree in 1844. He became a tutor at University College in 1854, and held various University offices. The Queen nominated him to the Bishopric of St. David's in 1874. He wrote a number of works on educational and religious topics. The distinguished prelate was twice married.

DEATH OF JAMES C. HAYMAKER.

Famous Oil Operator Who Made and Lost Fortunes.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 14.—James C. Haymaker died to-day at his home in this city, aged sixty-three years. He figured largely in the development of oil and gas in Western Pennsylvania, and no man was better known in the oil country than he. He made fortunes in developing new territory and lost considerable in dry holes.

In 1884 the name of Haymaker achieved a National reputation. That year Michael and Obediah Haymaker, brothers of James, leased a piece of gas land in the then comparatively unknown Murrysville district. The same land subsequently came into the possession of the Pennsylvania Fuel Company. It was while the Haymakers were attempting to regain possession of the land that Obediah Haymaker was killed and the Haymaker riots (so called) took place. For the killing of Obediah Haymaker A. Bowers and Milton Weston, a Chicago millionaire, were convicted and sent to the Western Penitentiary for long terms. Bowers served his time, but Weston was pardoned.

The last few years James G. Haymaker made Pittsburg his home.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Susan Carter Baring.

Susan Carter Baring, widow of Thomas Charles Baring, died at her home, at High Beach, Laughton, Essex, England, Jan. 11, in the sixtieth year of her age. Mrs. Baring was the eldest daughter of Robert Bowne Minturn, one of the founders of the old mercantile and shipping firm of Grinnell, Minturn & Co., and was in her youth one of the most beautiful and accomplished women in New York. She was married to Thomas Charles Baring, eldest son of the Bishop of Durham, and a member of the London firm of Baring Brothers & Co. Mr. Baring was one of the most prominent men in business and political life in England. He was a member of Parliament from London, and founder of Hertford College, at Oxford. At the time of the financial troubles of the firm Mr. Baring was mortally sick in Rome, but he managed to return to London, and by his efforts and means arranged the affairs of the firm.

Mrs. Baring was well known for her many acts of kindness and charity and her warm-hearted nature. Her death will be deeply regretted wherever she was known. She resided mainly in Essex, but had a town house in Grafton Street, Berkeley Square, London. Two unmarried sons, Harold Baring and Nigel Baring, and three daughters survive her.

Theodore S. Brown.

The Rev. Theodore S. Brown of Chatham, N. Y., died yesterday at the Albany Hospital, where he had undergone a surgical operation. He had been the pastor of the Reformed Church of Chatham for sixteen years, and next Spring would have completed his fiftieth year of consecutive service in the ministry.

He was born in Canaan, N. Y., Dec. 13, 1824. He was a graduate of Union College in the class of '44. He studied theology in Princeton Seminary.

His first pastorate was at New Concord, N. Y.; the second, in Plainfield, N. J.; the third, in Brooklyn, N. Y.; the fourth, in Dunellen, N. J. From Dunellen he went to Chatham. He was married in 1847 to Elizabeth L. Clarke, who, with a son and daughter, survives him.

Mrs. Virginia D. Hunt.

FLUSHING, L. I., Jan. 14.—Mrs. Virginia D. Hunt, wife of Lieut. Rigley Hunt, United States Navy, died at her home on Sandford Avenue last night. She was thirty-six years old. She was a daughter of Commodore Upshur. Her husband and two children survive her.

Obituary Note.

—James L. Cherry of Detroit, mining engineer and railroad contractor, who, for seven years, had been engaged in the construction of a railroad from Buenaventura inland into the mountains and south to Cali, in the United States of Colombia, died suddenly Jan. 9. Mr. Cherry was traveling in company with his secretary, Mr. Schremm of New York, and was on his way home when seized with the fatal illness.
